FROM THE CURATOR
What Remains presents contemporary black life as constructed by the dominant values of our society—its weight and pain, but also its joy and light.

The work is an opportunity to reflect on how we exist with and perceive those around us and how we, in turn, might be perceived. What new information is gleaned with a simple shift in perspective? Curator and performer Tara Aisha Willis has described the repetitive deep lunging in What Remains as an embodied moment where such a shift might be possible: is the lunge the result of collapsing under a great burden, or is it the starting place from where the performer might take off in a sprint?

The performance asks how we might come to see ourselves, and each other, more fully as humans. How might we abandon assumptions that hinder the communication of our truths? How can we learn to see, and see differently?

Situated in a corner of the MCA Warehouse and framed by the backdrop of Chicago’s gleaming skyline, Claudia Rankine, Will Rawls, and the cast of What Remains do not allow us to forget the pain or darkness of their world, but they do share their light—and for that, I am hopeful.

The performance was curated by Associate Curator of Performance Tara Aisha Willis, who has invited Curatorial Assistant Laura Paige Kyber to write this note.

ABOUT THE MCA WAREHOUSE
Many museums, including the MCA, cannot store all of their collection works on-site due to space limitations. The MCA Warehouse is designed in part to house and protect a portion of the more than 2,500 artworks in our permanent collection while they are not on rotating display at the museum.
ABOUT THE WORK

“In making What Remains, we are trying to imagine the state of being both living and already slated for death as a habitable place, a vast void or tundra where we use our voices and bodies to call ourselves into existence. It may be the ‘already-dead’ space, but it is ours, or at least a space where we are already accustomed to its particular discomforts. What does it mean for us to welcome an audience into our space?”

ASL Interpretation by Veramarie Baldoza and Julikka LeChe
Audio Description by Victor Cole
CLAUDIA RANKINE (TEXT) is the author of five collections of poetry, including Citizen: An American Lyric and Don’t Let Me Be Lonely, two plays including The Provenance of Beauty: A South Bronx Travelogue, and video collaborations, and is the editor of several anthologies, including The Racial Imaginary: Writers on Race in the Life of the Mind. Her recent play The White Card premiered in February 2018 (ArtsEmerson/American Repertory Theater). Among her many awards and honors, Rankine is the recipient of the Bobbitt National Prize for Poetry, the Poets & Writers Jackson Poetry Prize, and fellowships from the Guggenheim Foundation, the Lannan Foundation, the MacArthur Foundation, United States Artists, and the National Endowment of the Arts. She is the chancellor of the Academy of American Poets and teaches at Yale University as the Frederick Iseman Professor of Poetry. In 2016, she cofounded The Racial Imaginary Institute.

WILL RAWLIS (DIRECTION AND CHOREOGRAPHY) is a choreographer, writer, and lifelong performer based in New York. His practice combines dance with other media to investigate the poetics of blackness, ambiguity, and abstraction. Rawlis has presented his work at The Chocolate Factory Theater, MoMA PS1, Performa 15, the Whitney Museum of American Art, ImPulsTanz, and the Portland Institute for Contemporary Art. He cocurated the Danspace Project Platform 2016: Lost and Found with Ishmael Houston-Jones. Focusing on the intergenerational impact of the AIDS epidemic on dancers, women, and people of color, he helped organize performances, reconstructions, discussions, and coedited the catalogue, Lost and Found: Dance, New York, HIV/AIDS, Then and Now. His other writings have been published by Artforum, Triple Canopy, and the Museum of Modern Art. He is recipient of a 2017-18 Guggenheim Fellowship, a 2015 Foundation for Contemporary Arts Grant. He has held teaching fellowships at Wesleyan University and Williams College and continues to lecture widely in university and festival contexts.

JOHN LUCAS (CREATIVE CONSULTATION) is a documentary photographer and filmmaker working in the humanist tradition. Lucas has directed and produced several cutting-edge multimedia projects, including a collaborative series of video essays with poet Claudia Rankine entitled Situations. In 2014 he completed his first feature-length documentary film, The Cooler Bandits, awarded “Best Documentary” at the 2014 Harlem International Film Festival. His work has been exhibited in museums and galleries including the Brooklyn Art Museum, the Cleveland Museum of Art, REDCAT (Los Angeles), OK Harris Works of Art Gallery (New York), the Smithsonian Institution (Washington, DC), and the Walker Arts Foundation (St. Louis), Panadería (Mexico City), Aeroplastics Contemporary (Brussels), and Fieldgate Gallery (London).

About the Artists

ABOUT THE ARTISTS

Innovation and The Kenneth Rainin Foundation. Szlasa has taught design at Stanford University, Saint Mary’s College of California, Bard College, and New York University.

JEREMY TOUSSAINT-BAPTISTE (SOUND DESIGN AND PERFORMER) is a New York-based artist, composer, and performer considering errant relations that thrive across subjectivities. Toussaint-Baptiste was a 2017 Artist-in-Residence at ISSUE Project Room and received a Bessie Award in Outstanding Music Composition/Sound Design in 2018. He has presented visual and performance work at Performance Space New York; The Brooklyn Museum; The Kitchen; ISSUE Project Room; The Studio Museum in Harlem; the Philadelphia Museum of Art; FringeArts, Philadelphia; Tanz im August at HAUS, Berlin; and Stoa Cultural Center, Helsinki, among others. Toussaint-Baptiste is a founding member of the performance collective Wildcat! and collaborates with performers and visual artists including Yanira Castro/a canary torsi, Tiona Nekkia McClodden, Jaamil Olawale Kosoko, and André M. Zachery.

LESLIE CUYJET (PERFORMER) has been performing and dancing in New York since 2004, working with artists from David Gordon and Meredith Monk to Niall Jones and Kim Brandt to Anohni and Salange, while holding a long-standing performing and touring history with Jane Comfort & Company and Cynthia Oliver Co. Dance Theatre. Her choreographic work has been presented in New York by La MaMa, Gibney Dance, Center for Performance Research, Movement Research, AUNTS, and Danspace Draftworks. Cuyjet is a 2017-18 Movement Research Artist-in-Residence.

JESSICA PRETTY (PERFORMER) is on a quest for pleasure that transcends time and the spaces in which she claims to reside. She makes dances, performs, collaborates with other artists (Larissa Velez-Jackson, Leslie Cuyjet, Dianne McIntyre, Cynthia Oliver, Jennifer Monson, and Niall Jones), and teaches dance art. Based in New York after receiving an MFA in Dance and Queer Studies, she spends her free time curating methodologies for living past survival through being as unapologetically black as possible.

TARA AISHA WILLIS (PERFORMER) is Associate Curator of Performance at the MCA, having previously worked at Movement Research in New York. She is a PhD candidate in Performance Studies at NYU and has held editorial positions at Women & Performance and TDR/The Drama Review and coedited a special issue of The Black Scholar with Thomas F. DeFrantz. Other writings appear in Movement Research Performance Journal, Performa Magazine; Dancing Platform Praying Grounds: Blackness, Churches, and Downtown Dance; and Performance Research. Willis performed in works by Kim Brandt and Yanira Castro. She held a 2018 SET FREE residency at Links Hall and dances with Skeleton Architecture, a Bessie Award–winner for Outstanding Performer in 2017.

LIVE ARTS BARD (PRODUCER) The Richard B. Fisher Center for the Performing Arts is a world-class destination for new productions and rediscoveries of music, dance, theater, and performance. From its landmark Frank Gehry building, the Fisher Center provides a home for artists to create intellectually and socially engaged works for local and global communities. New multidisciplinary works are developed year-round through Live Arts Bard (LAB), the Fisher Center’s residency and commissioning program. LAB provides time, space, and funds to professional artists to create new work. A program of Bard College, the Fisher Center illustrates Bard’s commitment to the performing arts as a cultural and educational necessity. Building on a 150-year history as a competitive and innovative undergraduate institution, Bard enriches culture, public life, and democratic discourse.
